

The transmission of data over the power line networks must not be implimented if it will in any way raise the present receiver noise levels, or in any other way interfere with HF or VHF/UHF radio communications systems. Not all new ideas are good.